LEXISNEXIS SUMMARY:

... The cornerstone for resolving disputes between parents and districts as to eligibility, FAPE, and other issues under the IDEA, is an impartial administrative adjudication conducted by a hearing/review officer (H/RO). ... District of Columbia Board of Education, the court ruled that when the child is still in the district's placement, hearing officers do not have the authority to issue declaratory relief, much less injunctive relief specific to the appropriateness of the parent's proposed alternative placement. ... Given the focus here on the scope of H/RO remedial authority, it suffices to identify the following sample of possible, but unsettled, boundaries for the courts and, by inference, H/ROs with regard to compensatory education awards: (1) after graduation, (2) during stay-put after age 21, (3) for denying opportunity for meaningful parental participation, (4) concurrent with tuition reimbursement, and (5) for postsecondary education. ... Although the case arose in the context of state regulations for gifted students, which differ in part from the IDEA, the court in subsequent remedy related decisions imported this ruling to the IDEA context. ... In contrast, a review officer in New Mexico recently ruled that under that state's law, a hearing officer does not even have the authority to recommend that a court sanction noncompliant parents by requiring them to pay the district's attorneys' fees.

Introduction

This article provides an update of a comprehensive review that the published five years ago, which synthesized the various sources of law specific to the remedial authority of hearing/review officers (H/ROs) under the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA).ⁿ¹ The publisher of the Administrative Law Review, which contained the original version, provided permission for the updated publication here.

The IDEA is a funding act that dates back to 1975.ⁿ² The primary purpose of the IDEA is to provide a free appropriate public education (FAPE) to each child with a disabilityⁿ³ in the least restrictive environment (LRE).ⁿ⁴ The vehicle for determining and delivering FAPE in the LRE is an individualized education program (IEP).ⁿ⁵

The cornerstone for resolving disputes between parents and [*3] districts as to eligibility, FAPE, and other issues under the IDEA, is an impartial administrative adjudication conducted by a hearing/review officer (H/RO).ⁿ⁶ The IDEA gives states the choice of having a one-tiered system, consisting solely of an impartial due process hearing, or a two-tiered system, which includes an additional officer level review.ⁿ⁷ Subsequent to exhausting this administrative adjudication, the aggrieved party has the right to judicial review in state or federal court.ⁿ⁸ The IDEA accords judges the authority to award attorneys' fees in specified circumstancesⁿ⁹ and, without further specification, requires them to grant "such relief as the court determines is appropriate."ⁿ¹⁰ The IDEA and its regulations,ⁿ¹¹ however, are largely silent about the remedial authority of the impartial H/ROs.ⁿ¹²

[*4] In the expansive litigation under the IDEA, ⁿ¹³ courts have exercised various traditional forms of relief, primarily in the form of the injunction-based, specialized equitable remedies of tuition reimbursement ⁿ¹⁴ and compensatory education. ⁿ¹⁵ In contrast, the [*5] courts are divided as to whether the IDEA, with or without § 1983, ⁿ¹⁶ allows for the legal remedy of money damages. ⁿ¹⁷ But what have the [*6] courts and other sources of legal authority delineated as the boundaries for H/ROs' remedial authority?

The purpose of this Article is to provide an updated demarcation of the legal basis and boundaries of H/ROs' remedial authority under the IDEA and correlative state special education laws. ⁿ¹⁸ The sources for this synthesis are pertinent court decisions, published H/RO decisions, and interpretations of the Department of Education's Office of Special Education Programs (OSEP) to date. ⁿ¹⁹ The scope of this Article, however, does not extend to the related issues of the deference accorded to ⁿ²⁰ or by ⁿ²¹ H/ROs under the IDEA; H/ROs' [*7] impartiality ⁿ²² or, to the extent that it does not directly intertwine with remedial authority, ⁿ²³ H/ROs' jurisdiction ⁿ²⁴ under the IDEA; the statute of limitations for filing for a first-or second-tier administrative proceeding under the IDEA; ⁿ²⁵ or hearing officers' remedial authority under § 504. ⁿ²⁶ Moreover, the boundaries of this [*8] Article are limited to the scope of the H/ROs' remedial authority, not to the standards they use to reach remedies. ⁿ²⁷ Finally, this Article only addresses H/ROs' remedial authority as a result of, not during, ⁿ²⁸ the prehearing and hearing process.

To a large extent, the pertinent legal authorities treat the remedial authority of H/ROs as derived from and largely commensurate with the remedial authority of the courts. ⁿ²⁹ The following Parts of this Article delineate the specific boundaries of this derived remedial authority in special education cases with respect to each of the major categories of relief - declaratory, injunctive, and monetary - in this [*9] order of approximately ascending strength. When the applicable source - court, H/RO, or OSEP - addresses multiple forms of relief, I categorize the decision as the strongest relief except when there is separate treatment of each remedy.

I. H/RO Authority to Issue Declaratory Relief

It is undisputed that an H/RO has authority to determine (1) whether a student is covered under one or more of the eligibility classifications of the IDEA, ⁿ³⁰ (2) whether a district's evaluation and/or the parents' independent educational evaluation (IEE) is appropriate, ⁿ³¹ and (3) whether a student's program and placement are appropriate. ⁿ³² Thus far, the legal limitations on an H/RO's authority to issue declaratory relief with respect to these questions have been scant. Courts have, however, restricted H/ROs' authority to issue declaratory relief with respect to the following issues.

First, accompanying its even more puzzling general proscription, ⁿ³³ a federal district court in the District of Columbia appears to have limited an H/RO's ability to address a parent's [*10] proposed placement when the child is still in the district's placement, as distinguished from a tuition reimbursement case in which the parent has unilaterally placed their child in a private placement. Specifically, in Davis v. District of Columbia Board of Education, the court ruled that when the child is still in the district's placement, hearing officers do not have the authority to issue declaratory relief, much less injunctive relief specific to the appropriateness of the parent's proposed alternative placement. ⁿ³⁴ According to this court, in said context, an H/RO is limited to declaring whether the placement that the district has offered is appropriate. ⁿ³⁵ If the H/RO's determination is that said placement is inappropriate, the Davis interpretation requires the hearing officer to remand the issue to the IEP team to develop an appropriate placement. ⁿ³⁶ In rejecting the plaintiff-parent's reliance on an OSEP policy letter that adopted a contrary interpretation, ⁿ³⁷ however, the court relied on a consent decree that is specific to the District of Columbia. ⁿ³⁸

Perhaps due to the early date ⁿ³⁹ and the limiting legal context ⁿ⁴⁰ of Davis, most H/ROs - and courts ⁿ⁴¹ - have ignored the Davis ruling. [*11] Rather, most H/ROs have routinely considered the appropriateness of a parental proposal in which the H/ROs declare that the district's placement is inappropriate. ⁿ⁴²

A second and more generally accepted limitation is that H/ROs typically decline to declare which side is the prevailing party, ⁿ⁴³ except where state law requires H/ROs to include this determination for purposes of awarding attorneys' fees. ⁿ⁴⁴ One example of such a jurisdiction is California, which requires the hearing officer to make this explicit determination on an issue-by-issue basis. ⁿ⁴⁵

The third limitation is more indirect and generic in terms of whether an H/RO may use declaratory or other relief to decide an issue sua sponte. In the only published decision on point, Pennsylvania's intermediate appellate court answered this question in [*12] the negative. ⁿ⁴⁶ The limited exception, according to that court's interpretation of the IDEA's administering agency, is that an H/RO has the authority to decide the child's pendent, or "stay-put," placement under the IDEA, ⁿ⁴⁷ without either party raising the issue, which in this context may amount to declaratory relief. ⁿ⁴⁸ Yet, on occasion, H/ROs exercise such authority without clear consideration of this boundary and its exception. For example, a review officer in New York decided that a plaintiff-child was not eligible for special education even though the parties had stipulated at the hearing that the child was eligible and, thus, it was not an issue on appeal to the review officer.ⁿ⁴⁹

Finally, a state law may disallow particular prospective placements, which is binding on H/ROs and - according to a recent ruling - courts.ⁿ⁵⁰

II. H/RO Authority to Issue Injunctive Relief

Although there is no bright line distinction between declaratory and injunctive relief in this context,ⁿ⁵¹ the boundaries of H/ROs' [*13] injunctive authority have been the subject of more extensive debate than the boundaries of H/ROs' declaratory relief. As a threshold matter, the Pennsylvania courts have applied the same relatively relaxed sua sponte limitation, which these courts established for declaratory relief, to H/ROs' injunctive authority.ⁿ⁵² Other jurisdictions have applied this same limitationⁿ⁵³ with similar far from strict latitude.ⁿ⁵⁴ The rest of this Part organizes the applicable rulings in terms of the subject of the injunctive relief, ranging from evaluations to attorneys' fees.

Another general limitation on the H/RO's remedial authority, [*14] typically in the form of injunctive relief, is when the defendant district has already fully rectified the deficiency.ⁿ⁵⁵ For example, in a New York case, the review officer overturned the hearing officer's order to evaluate the student for specific learning disability in math where the parties had agreed to the math evaluation and the district had completed it.ⁿ⁵⁶ Although based on mootness at the judicial review level, a federal district court decision in the District of Columbia adds further support by granting the district's motion for summary judgment because as a result of the hearing officer's decision, the district provided all of the relief to which the parent was entitled.ⁿ⁵⁷

A. Ordering Evaluations

First, the IDEA expressly provides H/ROs with the authority to override lack of parental consent for initial evaluations and reevaluations except where disallowed by state law.ⁿ⁵⁸ There are many examples of such H/RO orders, which can also be seen as declaratory relief.ⁿ⁵⁹

[*15] A Pennsylvania court decision demarcates two applicable boundaries to H/ROs' injunctive authority with regard to evaluations.ⁿ⁶⁰ This decision, though not officially published, concerns gifted students under state law. Nevertheless, it is available in Individuals with Disabilities Education Law Report (IDELR), and Pennsylvania's intermediate appellate court has treated its gifted students cases without notable distinction from its IDEA cases.ⁿ⁶¹ First, relying on its aforementionedⁿ⁶² decision with regard to declaratory relief under the IDEA, this Pennsylvania court invalidated the H/RO's order for the district to conduct a reevaluation because neither party had raised this issue.ⁿ⁶³ Second, the Pennsylvania court alternatively reasoned that the review officer panel erred as a matter of law in ordering a reevaluation because the court had concluded that the district's reevaluation was appropriate.ⁿ⁶⁴

B. Overriding Refusal of Parental Consent for Services

Prior to the most recent reauthorization of the IDEA, H/ROs' authority to override a refusal of parental consent and thus effectively order the provision of special education services to the child was subject to controversy.ⁿ⁶⁵ Congress has made clear, however, that [*16] H/ROs and courts do not have such authority with regard to initial placement.ⁿ⁶⁶

C. Ordering IEP Revisions

It is not unusual for an H/RO to order revisions in a child's IEP.ⁿ⁶⁷ When the basis for a revision order was a defensible determination that the IEP was inappropriate, such relief arguably is within an H/RO's discretion, unless the relief is deemed to preempt the IEP team's responsibility.ⁿ⁶⁸ However, a decision by Florida's intermediate appellate court invalidated an H/RO's order for a district [*17] to add specified services to the IEP that were at issue when there was no such determination.ⁿ⁶⁹ Reasoning that the H/RO had concluded that the IEP was appropriate, the court ruled that the order to add services to the IEP was beyond the H/RO's authority.ⁿ⁷⁰ Similarly, a federal district court overruled an H/RO's order to revise the student's behavior intervention plan after concluding that the IEP, including the BIP, met the applicable standards for FAPE, although the court's reversal and reasoning were not particularly clear and broad-based.ⁿ⁷¹ Another federal court avoided this problem by interpreting the hearing officer's order, in the wake of a decision that the IEP provided FAPE in the LRE, as merely confirming the IEP team's authority to proceed to make its proposed modifications, subject to the parent's right to challenge them.ⁿ⁷² An added problem with orders to revise the IEP in cases where the H/RO deems the placement or program appropriate is that such orders may well trigger the issue of the

IDEA's fee-shifting provision.ⁿ⁷³ Yet, H/ROs sometimes order such revisions, presumably ignorant of such limitations.ⁿ⁷⁴

D. Ordering a Particular Student Placement

Reflecting the overlap between declaratory and injunctive relief, the foregoing discussion about the boundaries for H/ROs' authority to declare in favor of a particular placement also applies to their authority to order such a placement.ⁿ⁷⁵

E. Awarding Tuition Reimbursement

Whether viewed as tied to program or placement, the two forms of relief most specifically associated with the IDEA are tuition reimbursement and compensatory education services.

Tuition reimbursement, used generically to refer to reimbursement for various expenses in addition to or alternative to tuition, such as transportation and other related services, is a well-established remedy under the IDEA. In a pair of decisions,ⁿ⁷⁶ the Supreme Court established what most authorities view as a three-part test: (1) whether the district's proposed placement is appropriate; (2) if not, whether the parents' unilateral placement is appropriate; and (3) if so, equitable considerations.ⁿ⁷⁷ In establishing this set of [*19] criteria, the Court made clear that it based this tuition reimbursement remedy on the IDEA authorization for appropriate judicial reliefⁿ⁷⁸ and that said relief was distinguishable from money damages.ⁿ⁷⁹ In its subsequent codification of this case law via the 1997 reauthorization of the IDEA,ⁿ⁸⁰ Congress made clear that the authority to award tuition reimbursement extends to H/ROs.ⁿ⁸¹

Before and after the 1997 amendments to the IDEA, H/ROs have routinely applied the relevant three-part test without any other particular boundary.ⁿ⁸² In the only notable - but temporary - judicial limitation, the Third Circuit - in a case that arose before the 1997 amendments - negated an H/RO's equitable reduction of the reimbursement amount.ⁿ⁸³ The court declared that unreasonable parental conduct was not a relevant factor, but the court acknowledged that Congress had included it in the applicable [*20] calculus for cases arising after 1997.ⁿ⁸⁴ In a recent case, a federal district court illustrated that H/ROs authority under the current IDEA to reduce tuition reimbursement is based on equitable balancing.ⁿ⁸⁵ Even more recently, another federal district court held that - upon finding the rest of the three-part test met - ordering direct retroactive payment to the private school, where the parents had not paid the tuition based on their lack of financial resources, was within the IHO's equitable authority under the IDEA even though it is not literally "reimbursement."ⁿ⁸⁶

Another published decision that demarcated a specifically pertinent limitation on tuition reimbursement as a remedy was a review officer decision under the IDEA jurisdiction of the Department of Defense Domestic Dependent Elementary and Secondary Schools (DDESS). More specifically, the review officer ruled that (1) hearing officers' remedial orders are entitled to the general rebuttable presumption of good faith deference,ⁿ⁸⁷ and (2) the reimbursable expenses must be reasonable and do not include the "normal expenses of raising a child."ⁿ⁸⁸ The case was the subject of multiple judicial appeals, but these appeals focused on other issues.ⁿ⁸⁹

[*21] Representing even more limiting authority, a hearing officer in Kansas ruled that tuition reimbursement was not available for a gifted student based on a district's failure to implement the student's IEP.ⁿ⁹⁰ The hearing officer's reasoning and invocation of cited authorities were not clear or cogent,ⁿ⁹¹ but the decision is not necessarily limited to gifted students because Kansas's special education law is the same, in relevant part, for students with disabilities.ⁿ⁹²

Finally, in a recent unpublished decision, the Third Circuit Court of Appeals ruled that tuition reimbursement is not available as a remedy for a district's delay for more than one year in processing a parent's request for an IDEA impartial hearing where the ultimate determination was that the district had provided the child with FAPE.ⁿ⁹³ The reasoning was that the purpose of this form of relief is to remediate denials of FAPE not to punish districts.ⁿ⁹⁴

F. Awarding Compensatory Education

Compensatory education, like tuition reimbursement, is a specialized form of injunctive remedy. The courts have established compensatory education as an available equitable remedy under the IDEA via an analogy, albeit an incomplete one,ⁿ⁹⁵ to tuition [*22] reimbursement.ⁿ⁹⁶ Although the Third Circuit initially commented, by way of dicta, that H/ROs do not have the authority to award compensatory education,ⁿ⁹⁷ the IDEA administering agencyⁿ⁹⁸ and the courtsⁿ⁹⁹ have established that H/ROs do have such authority under the IDEA.ⁿ¹⁰⁰ Previous sources have comprehensively canvassed the standards for, and other issues specific to, the award of compensatory education.ⁿ¹⁰¹ The foundational element, as the Third Circuit, recently [*23] reinforced,ⁿ¹⁰² is the denial of FAPE.ⁿ¹⁰³

Given the focus here on the scope of H/RO remedial authority, it suffices to identify the following sample of possible, but unsettled, boundariesⁿ¹⁰⁴ for the courts and, by inference, H/ROs with regard to compensatory education awards: (1) after graduation,ⁿ¹⁰⁵ (2) during stay-put after age 21,ⁿ¹⁰⁶ (3) for denying opportunity for meaningful parental participation,ⁿ¹⁰⁷ (4) concurrent with tuition reimbursement,ⁿ¹⁰⁸ and (5) for postsecondary education.ⁿ¹⁰⁹ More [*24] settled is the limitation that the award may not be either open-ended or in excess of "what is required for compliance with the student's IEP."ⁿ¹¹⁰ Similarly settled, and as would apply to any injunctive relief, an H/RO's compensatory education order must not be either sua sponte,ⁿ¹¹¹ or so vague as to be unenforceable.ⁿ¹¹² Finally, H/ROs have differed widely, but courts have not yet addressed various other scope issues, such as whether an H/RO may retain jurisdiction for implementationⁿ¹¹³ and, if not, to whom an H/RO should instead delegate the implementation of the award.ⁿ¹¹⁴ Nevertheless, as a [*25] general matter courts have agreed that H/ROs have rather wide equitable discretion in their calculus for compensatory education.ⁿ¹¹⁵

G. Changing Student Grades or Records

H/ROs occasionally face an issue of student records, and their decisions are usually knee-jerk disclaimers without careful research or reasoning.ⁿ¹¹⁶ In one of the few pertinent published decisions, a [*26] Virginia review officer concluded that H/ROs do not have jurisdiction and thus do not have remedial authority to change the grades of an IDEA student.ⁿ¹¹⁷ The review officer reasoned that the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) provides a procedure and forum for addressing such matters,ⁿ¹¹⁸ a rather unconvincing rationale.ⁿ¹¹⁹

H/ROs' injunctive authority with regard to student records has similarly been subject to very few published decisions. For example, a hearing panel in Missouri cursorily concluded that it lacked authority to expunge student records.ⁿ¹²⁰ In doing so, the panel relied solely on the fact that it was a panel of limited jurisdiction.ⁿ¹²¹

Releasing records is a different remedy from expunging them. In a New Mexico decision, the review officer concluded that H/ROs lack authority under the IDEA to override parents' refusal to release the child's medical records.ⁿ¹²² Citing two published H/RO decisions from other states, the review officer relied on the reasoning that such matters were exclusively within the jurisdiction of FERPA, which is not necessarily persuasive.ⁿ¹²³ In any event, the review officer also [*27] agreed with dicta in the cited decisions and characterized those decisions as "consistently deploring the refusal of such releases and expressing concern over the results of failures to share relevant information with school personnel."ⁿ¹²⁴

H. Ordering a Student's Promotion or Graduation

Not addressing the remedial authority of H/ROs with regard to promotion and graduation, the IDEA's administering agency offered the adjacent interpretation that, while standards for promotion and retention are a state and local function, "the IDEA does not prevent a State or local education agency from assigning this decisionmaking responsibility to the IEP team."ⁿ¹²⁵ But in the absence of such state law delegation, increasing authority seems to suggest that H/ROs face limits in ordering such relief.ⁿ¹²⁶ For example, a Massachusetts hearing officer avoided deciding whether H/ROs lack authority to order promotions, concluding that waiving the district's summer credit policy was not appropriate for the particular student.ⁿ¹²⁷ More strongly, Pennsylvania's intermediate court concluded that the state law's delegation of graduation authority to school districts preempted an H/RO from accelerating the graduation of a gifted student.ⁿ¹²⁸ [*28] Although the factual circumstances correlate more closely to gifted students than to those with disabilities,ⁿ¹²⁹ the court did not specifically limit its decision to gifted students.ⁿ¹³⁰

Similarly, an H/RO has limited authority to order a school district to allow a child with disabilities to participate in graduation where either the child has not completed graduation requirementsⁿ¹³¹ or the denial did not violate applicable special education regulations or the child's IEP.ⁿ¹³²

I. Ordering Training of District Personnel

On occasion H/ROs order training of specified school district personnel without examining whether H/ROs have authority to provide such relief.ⁿ¹³³ In one of many examples,ⁿ¹³⁴ a Connecticut [*29] hearing officer ordered that a student's IEP be revised to require that all of the student's teachers receive training as to the student's disability, behavior intervention plan, and required services and accommodations.ⁿ¹³⁵ The hearing officer also ordered the training and selection of an aide for the student.ⁿ¹³⁶

The limited pertinent court decisions subject such orders to question. Specifically, Pennsylvania's intermediate appellate court has ruled that H/ROs lack the authority to order a district to arrange for training of its employees as a remedy for denial of FAPE because state law delegates staff development to districts.ⁿ¹³⁷ Although the case arose in the context of state regulations for gifted students, which differ in part from the IDEA,ⁿ¹³⁸ the court in subsequent remedy related decisions imported this ruling to the IDEA context.ⁿ¹³⁹ Nevertheless, the Pennsylvania court's preemption rationale is subject to dispute in cases controlled by the federal IDEA, as compared to state special education laws that are not deemed to be incorporated into federal standards. Thus far, the additional authority is itself inconclusive,ⁿ¹⁴⁰ although that concerning the analogous or overlapping next form of relief provides further guidance.

J. Ordering Districts to Hire Consultants

On occasion, H/ROs order districts to hire an outside expert as part of the remedy for denial of FAPE.ⁿ¹⁴¹ Yet, H/ROs have not reflected general cognizance of the increasing case law that points to boundaries in issuing such consultant remedies.

In the first case to impose a boundary, a DDESS review officer reversed such an order as "impermissible micro management," and thus "ultra vires and a clear abuse of discretion."ⁿ¹⁴² Although grounded in the statutory prerogatives of the education agency, the ruling is limited for several reasons: (1) DDESS represents a special context; (2) the hearing officer's order included various other forms of nonreimbursement relief, which the review officer's opinion covered only cryptically; and (3) the subsequent judicial appeals focused on other issues.ⁿ¹⁴³

Second, in dicta in a case concerning the appropriateness of an IEP, the Seventh Circuit commented on a hearing officer's "extensive relief, including, among other things, the appointment of private [*31] consultants who would essentially manage and deliver [the student's] public education."ⁿ¹⁴⁴ Regarding this relief as supporting the lower court's conclusion that the hearing officer did not provide due deference to the school personnel's IEP judgments, the Seventh Circuit characterized the hearing officer's remedies as "extreme measures that obviously went beyond remedying [the student's] situation."ⁿ¹⁴⁵ The degree to which this proportionality limitation applied to the ordered consultants is unclear because the court cited another of the hearing officer's remedies as illustrative of the hearing officer's overreaching - the order that the district provide disability awareness and sensitivity training for every student in the district.ⁿ¹⁴⁶ A federal district court's subsequent reversal of a hearing officer's order for neutral facilitator for all future meetings was similarly inconclusive due to the open-endedness of the hearing officer's order and the express limitation to the "particular facts" of case.ⁿ¹⁴⁷

In the third and most significant development to date, Pennsylvania's intermediate appellate court concluded that an H/RO's order that a district hire an outside expert to facilitate the development of a new IEP for the plaintiff-student was ultra vires in light of (1) the regulatory delegation of IEP team membership to the school district, (2) the limited scope of the violation, and (3) the regulatory limitations on IEP team composition.ⁿ¹⁴⁸ The same court [*32] has interchangeably applied this limitation in the gifted student and IDEA contexts, but it left the limitation's specific scope unclear in the IDEA context, explicitly ruling only that an H/RO lacked authority to order the district to engage outside experts for students with disabilities "without supporting evidence in the record."ⁿ¹⁴⁹ Finally, the same Pennsylvania court also applied its sua sponte limitation to invalidate an H/RO order to hire an outside expert.ⁿ¹⁵⁰

The more recent decisions have largely ignored or at least partially countered such limitations. For example, a federal district court in Kentucky initially upheld a review officer's order to arrange for the student's private psychologist to attend the IEP meeting, at district expense, to help the team devise and monitor a plan for providing the student with two years of compensatory education.ⁿ¹⁵¹ The court concluded that the requirement of the psychologist's attendance was equitable in this particular case, inasmuch as the review officer delegated the tailoring of the compensatory education to the team rather than ordering a specific number of hours. The court did not mention the Pennsylvania decisions, probably because the school district's argument did not extend beyond the requirements of the IDEA to the possible limitations of state law. After the Sixth Circuit reversed on other grounds,ⁿ¹⁵² the district court delegated to the equitable discretion of the review officer to determine whether to require paid attendance of the student's private psychologist or an independent literacy expert as part of its compensatory education award.ⁿ¹⁵³

Similarly, the both the Second Circuit and a federal district court recently upheld H/RO orders for inclusion consultants under the [*33] rubric of compensatory education.ⁿ¹⁵⁴ Arguably, the focus on compensatory education in the context of the LRE is particularly amenable to a consultant remedy as compared to a pure FAPE case, but these courts did not limit the H/ROs equitable authority to such situations.

Most recently, while supporting the H/RO's equitable authority to order the district to hire an independent consultant with appropriate credentials at a reasonable rate of pay, the federal district court of Massachusetts ruled that the hearing officer in this case abused his discretion to require the district to hire the parents' experts for this purpose.ⁿ¹⁵⁵

K. Issuing Enforcement Orders

H/ROs' enforcement authority has been tested for two overlapping subjects - private settlements and H/ROs' prior decisions.ⁿ¹⁵⁶ Some H/ROs order the enforcement of private settlement agreements,ⁿ¹⁵⁷ while other H/ROs interpret the courts' [*34] authority as exclusive in this area.ⁿ¹⁵⁸ There is at least limited judicial support for H/ROs' authority to enforce private settlement agreements.ⁿ¹⁵⁹ In the lead case, D.R. v. East Brunswick Board of Education,ⁿ¹⁶⁰ the Third Circuit ruled that such agreements are, as a matter of public policy, enforceable as binding contracts.ⁿ¹⁶¹ But the Third Circuit did not address the issue of whether H/ROs have authority to enforce the agreements.ⁿ¹⁶² More recently, the federal district court in Connecticut relied on the D.R. public policy rationale in ruling that H/ROs have the authority to enforce private settlement agreements.ⁿ¹⁶³ Some of the subsequent case law supports with this view.ⁿ¹⁶⁴ Yet, other courts have concluded that enforcement of such [*35] an agreement constitutes a breach of contract claim and therefore falls exclusively within judicial jurisdiction.ⁿ¹⁶⁵ Finally, OSEP has taken the position that since the IDEA does not address this matter, states may adopt their own rules regarding an H/RO's authority to enforce FAPE settlements that do not result from mediation or resolution meetings, so long as those rules are not limited to IDEA disputes.ⁿ¹⁶⁶

As a related but separate matter, limited case law suggests that hearing officers have the authority to provide consent decree status to a settlement for purposes of attorneys' fees, but only upon proper order.ⁿ¹⁶⁷

For enforcement of prior H/RO decisions, typically arising when a school district has allegedly failed to implement the prior H/RO's order, the prevailing view is that the appropriate forums are the state complaint resolution processⁿ¹⁶⁸ and, alternatively, the courts,ⁿ¹⁶⁹ rather [*36] than the H/RO process.ⁿ¹⁷⁰

L. Issuing Disciplinary Sanctions

The authority of hearing officers to issue disciplinary sanctions against either party or the party's legal counsel is a controversial question. Pointing out that the IDEA requires each state education agency (SEA) to ensure that H/ROs have the authority to grant the relief necessary for dispute resolution, the IDEA's administering agency has opined that the answer to this question is a matter of state law.ⁿ¹⁷¹ In a Michigan case, a hearing officer ordered parents' counsel to pay a district's costs (amounting to $ 306) based on the parents' counsel's "unexcusable failure to communicate with the District's counsel in a timely fashion."ⁿ¹⁷² Questionably assuming that such authority was automatically derivative, the hearing officer cited a case in which a court exercised such authority under the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.ⁿ¹⁷³ In a Texas case, a hearing officer dismissed a case with prejudice, concluding that a parent and the parent's attorney had engaged in "sanctionable conduct" by filing and dismissing the same special education due process request on four separate occasions as a means to manipulate the hearing settings and abuse the hearing process.ⁿ¹⁷⁴

The review officer and court decisions concerning H/ROs' [*37] authority to order financial or other sanctions against parties or their attorneys are scant and somewhat surprising. In Indiana, which is a two-tier state, a review officer upheld a hearing officer's authority to issue a financial sanction of $ 500 for "sham objections" and egregious delays.ⁿ¹⁷⁵ While clarifying that the sanction applied to the parents' attorney, the review officer found the requisite authority in state law.ⁿ¹⁷⁶ Citing this Indiana decision, a hearing officer in Minnesota, which is a one-tier state where administrative law judges serve as hearing officers, ordered a parent's attorney to pay $ 2,000 to the school district as a disciplinary sanction "for pursuing a [summary judgment] motion without sufficient factual or legal basis."ⁿ¹⁷⁷ The Minnesota hearing officer reasoned that his statutory responsibility to conduct hearings and the state's equivalent of Rule 11 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure implicitly supported his authority to issue sanctions.ⁿ¹⁷⁸ Significantly albeit separately, the federal district court in Minnesota subsequently upheld such sanctioning authority when a hearing officer ordered another parent's attorney to pay $ 2,432 as a sanction for filing a frivolous fourth hearing request.ⁿ¹⁷⁹ The court concluded that the hearing officer's authority to issue sanctions for frivolous hearing conduct was encompassed within the state regulation that granted hearing officers the authority to "do the additional things necessary to comply" with said regulations.ⁿ¹⁸⁰

In contrast, a review officer in New Mexico recently ruled that under that state's law, a hearing officer does not even have the authority to recommend that a court sanction noncompliant parents by requiring them to pay the district's attorneys' fees.ⁿ¹⁸¹ However, in dicta, the review officer noted that the 2004 amendments to the IDEA, which did not apply in this case, provided courts with the [*38] authority to award attorneys' fees to districts in certain circumstances.ⁿ¹⁸² The review officer also commented, rather ambiguously, that "under current law, administrative officers and courts are permitted to take into account Parents' lack of cooperation with the District in determining whether Parents are entitled to fees should they prevail in a due process proceeding" ⁿ¹⁸³

Straddling the fence, an Ohio appeals court concluded that H/ROs are entitled to "implied powers similar to those of a court," but that the review officer's dismissal of the parents' case with prejudice, based on their failure to comply with the order to submit the child's medical and psychological records, was too harsh a sanction.ⁿ¹⁸⁴ Similarly, the federal district court in New Jersey recently reversed a hearing officer's dismissal based on a pro se parent's lack of compliance with state filing requirements, concluding that a lesser form of dismissal would be a more appropriate remedy.ⁿ¹⁸⁵

M. Issuing Other Injunctive Relief

H/ROs have issued a rather remarkable range of other injunctions that have not been tested by subsequent review. Examples include (1) an Arkansas hearing officer's order that a school principal have no further contact with a student;ⁿ¹⁸⁶ (2) another Arkansas hearing officer's order that parents reimburse a district for the cost of an inexcusably cancelled evaluation appointment;ⁿ¹⁸⁷ (3) a California hearing officer's order that parents, who had joint custody but disagreed about their child's education, obtain a family court ruling as to which parent had final educational decisionmaking authority;ⁿ¹⁸⁸ [*39] and (4) a Pennsylvania review panel's decision ordering a district to provide a parent counseling and training.ⁿ¹⁸⁹

Conversely, some H/RO decisions that have denied injunctive authority are similarly open to question.ⁿ¹⁹⁰ For example, a Pennsylvania review panel ruled that it lacked authority to order an extended school day.ⁿ¹⁹¹ It is unclear, however, how to distinguish such relief from an extended school year, which is within the range of IDEA entitlements.ⁿ¹⁹² Similarly, a Michigan hearing officer summarily ruled that she did not have authority to order accommodations on a college entrance examination; although she did not provide a direct rationale, her ruling is only supportable to the extent that the student's graduation was bona fide.ⁿ¹⁹³ In a more marginal example, a Massachusetts hearing officer renounced authority to require a student to attend school after the student had reached the state-mandated maximum age, limiting the remedy to a declaration that the district offered the student FAPE and a strong recommendation that the student and the parent discontinue the student's nonattendance.ⁿ¹⁹⁴

[*40] Other open questions concern an H/RO's authority to order a SEA to take action. The IDEA's administering agency has opined that such authority depends on state law, but it added that authority may be implicated in certain circumstances by the SEA's general supervisory authority under IDEA.ⁿ¹⁹⁵ Finally, the 2004 IDEA reauthorization directly addressed H/ROs' injunctive authority in tandem with limiting H/ROs' finding of denial of FAPE based on procedural violations. Specifically, after identifying the three limited situations for such a finding, the amended IDEA provides: "Nothing in this [limitation provision] shall be construed to preclude a hearing officer from ordering a local education agency to comply with procedural requirements" ⁿ¹⁹⁶ Thus, while limiting the H/RO's decisionmaking authority, the amendments constitute the first time that the IDEA expressly recognizes the remedial authority of H/ROs.

Thus far, very few court decisions have limited HROs' authority to issue other injunctive relief. In one, Pennsylvania's intermediate, appellate court ruled that an H/RO lacks authority to require the district to provide the parent with a translated transcript, concluding that the hearing officer policy manual does not have the force of regulations, i.e., law.ⁿ¹⁹⁷ In a second such case, a federal district court reversed a hearing officer's order that effectively replaced the IEP team with the private company that implemented the child's home-based program, concluding that this arrangement would constitute a potential conflict of interest and was contrary to the district's responsibility.ⁿ¹⁹⁸

III. Other Relief

A. Awarding Attorneys' Fees

Although the IDEA expressly grants courts the authority to award [*41] attorneys' fees,ⁿ¹⁹⁹ courts have construed the accompanying statutory silence as implying that H/ROs do not have concomitant authority.ⁿ²⁰⁰ In the commentary accompanying the IDEA regulations, the administering agency has added a potential exception - in which state law so specifies.ⁿ²⁰¹ In the absence of such state law,ⁿ²⁰² H/ROs have consistently followed the judicial interpretation that attorneys' fees are within the court's exclusive domain.ⁿ²⁰³ The 2004 IDEA amendment that provides for awards of attorneys' fees to prevailing state or local education agencies in limited circumstances does so expressly within the same discretionary authority of courts.ⁿ²⁰⁴

Nevertheless, as an incidental intersection, an H/RO's remedy may have an effect on whether a court determines that a parent is entitled to attorneys' fees. For example, an H/RO recently upheld a district's proposed placement of a child but concluded that the IEP was not sufficiently specific with regard to mainstreaming opportunities at said placement and ordered the IEP team to meet to revise the IEP.ⁿ²⁰⁵ The Seventh Circuit ruled that the parent had only [*42] attained de minimis success and, thus, did not meet the prevailing party requirement for attorneys' fees under the IDEA.ⁿ²⁰⁶ As another variation of this intersection, H/ROs may have the authority upon proper order to provide consent decree status to a settlement for purposes of attorneys' fees.ⁿ²⁰⁷

B. Awarding Money Damages

Although a minority of courts have taken the view that money damages are available under the IDEA,ⁿ²⁰⁸ it is generally accepted that this form of relief is not within H/ROs' authority.ⁿ²⁰⁹

C. Making Strong Recommendations for District Action

A final category of marginal limitations is that H/ROs may only make strong recommendations that the defendant-district take certain action in the wake of an H/RO's decision in the district's favor.ⁿ²¹⁰ Given the appearance of forceful authority of H/ROs, such dicta are questionable from a purist point of view,ⁿ²¹¹ though some courts have appeared to endorse this directive guidance.ⁿ²¹²

Conclusion

With the exception of money damages and attorneys' fees, H/ROs are generally not cognizant or consistent with regard to the boundaries of their remedial authority. The language of the IDEA and its regulations are not particularly helpful in this regard, but a growing body of published administrative and case law provides useful and enforceable demarcations that warrant careful consideration by H/ROs and other interested individuals. The addition of qualifications for H/ROs in the IDEA reauthorization - concerning H/ROs' knowledge and ability to understand special education law, to conduct hearings, and to "render and write decisions"ⁿ²¹³ - appears to reinforce the need for H/ROs to be aware of and to act in conformance with the limits on their remedial powers. The codification of the applicable authority, including the boundaries for H/ROs, merits not only the attention of Congress - which has neglected this important area of policy-making as a foundation for state variation - but also customized elaboration in state special education statutes and regulations.

n2. See 20 U.S.C. §§ 1400-1487 (2009). The Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (IDEA) was originally named the Education for All Handicapped Children Act (the Act). § 1400(c)(2). Congress reauthorized the Act several times, with successive refinements. The 1990 reauthorization included the name change to the IDEA. For a comprehensive comparison of the 1986 reauthorization, § 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, and the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990, see Perry A. Zirkel, A Comparison of the IDEA and Section 504/ADA, 178 Educ. L. Rep. 629 (2003). The implementing regulations for the IDEA are at 34 C.F.R. pt. 300 (2009). The most recent reauthorization, signed by President Bush on December 3, 2004, went into effect, in relevant part, on July 1, 2005. With limited exceptions, see infra note 12, the reauthorization did not materially change the statutory provisions that provide the basis for the analysis in this Article.

n3. See 20 U.S.C. § 1400(d)(1)(A) (setting forth six purposes of the IDEA). A free appropriate public education (FAPE) consists of special education and related services designed to address the needs of the individual eligible child. § 1401(8); see also 34 C.F.R. § 300.17(c) (2009) (specifying that FAPE means services that "include preschool, elementary school, or secondary school education").

n4. See 20 U.S.C. § 1412(a)(5); 34 C.F.R. § 300.114-.117 (requiring that children with disabilities be educated, within a broad continuum of placements, with nondisabled children to the maximum extent appropriate).

n5. 20 U.S.C. §§1401(11), 1414(d); see also 34 C.F.R. §§300.22, 300.320-.321 (2009) (defining an individualized educational program (IEP) team and delineating the content of an IEP).

n6. See 20 U.S.C. § 1415(b)(6); see also 34 C.F.R. § 300.507(a) (providing the procedures for instituting an impartial due process hearing). The other dispute resolution mechanism, which is purely administrative and without judicial review, is the state complaint resolution process. §§300.151-.153; see generally Perry A. Zirkel, Legal Boundaries for the IDEA Complaint Resolution Process, 237 Educ. L. Rep. 565 (2008). Mediation is also available as an adjunct to the hearing/review officer process. § 300.506.

n7. 20 U.S.C. § 1415(f)-(g); see also 34 C.F.R. §§300.514(b), 300.516 (indicating situations in which appeal or civil action may be available). A gradually decreased number of states (currently, 10) have a second, review-officer tier, with the remaining 34 states opting for a one-tier, state-level hearing officer system. Perry A. Zirkel & Gina Scala, Due Process Hearing Systems under the IDEA: A State-by-State Survey, 21 J. Disability Pol'y Stud. 3 (2010). This survey also revealed a gradual trend toward full-time ALJs at the first tier. Id.

n8. 20 U.S.C. § 1415(i)(2); see also 34 C.F.R. § 300.516(a) (stating that a party may bring a claim in a "district court of the United States without regard to the amount in controversy").

n9. 20 U.S.C. § 1415(i)(3); see also 34 C.F.R. § 300.517 (requiring that the fees be reasonable).

n10. 20 U.S.C. § 1415(i)(2)(C)(iii); 34 C.F.R. § 300.516(c)(3). For a recent analysis of the boundaries for a court's remedial authority under the IDEA, see Garcia v. Bd. of Educ., 520 F.3d 1116 (10th Cir. 2008).

n11. In contrast to the silence regarding hearing/review officers (H/ROs), the regulations explicitly provide the state complaint process, which is the alternate administrative dispute resolution mechanism, with express remedies, including expense reimbursement and compensatory education. 34 C.F.R. §§300.141(b)(1).

n12. There are limited exceptions. The first is an injunction, analogous to the judicial authority construed in Honig v. Doe, 484 U.S. 305, 328 (1988), to change the placement of the child on an interim basis in narrowly specified, danger-based disciplinary circumstances. 20 U.S.C. § 1415(k)(2). In contrast with the provision allocating to the IEP team the determination of the other interim placements, 20 U.S.C. § 1415(k)(2); 34 C.F.R. § 300.531, the hearing officer's authority for Honig-type situations appears to be injunctive, rather than merely declaratory, relief. The 2004 IDEA reauthorization deleted the criteria for such interim placements, suggesting that the hearing officer is not limited to the district proposal. 20 U.S.C. § 1415(k)(3)(B)(ii). A second limited exception is the declaratory or injunctive authority, unless inconsistent with state law, to override a refusal of parental consent to an initial evaluation or re-evaluation. 20 U.S.C. § 1414(a)(1)(C)(ii); 34 C.F.R. § 300.300(a)(3)(i), 300.300(c)(2)(ii). With regard to initial services, however, the 2004 IDEA reauthorization codified the administering agency's interpretation that hearing officers lack such overriding authority for parental refusals of consent. 20 U.S.C. § 1414(a)(1)(D); see also Letter to Manasevit, 41 IDELR P 36, at 201 (OSEP 2003); Letter to Gagliardi, 36 IDELR P 267, at 1161 (OSERS 2001); Letter to Cox, 36 IDELR P 66, at 282 (OSEP 2001) (noting that the U.S. Department of Education's Office of Special Education Programs (OSEP) interpreted the IDEA as permitting the overriding of parental refusal only with regard to evaluations). Third and most significantly, the IDEA specifically grants not only judges, but also hearing officers the authority to issue tuition reimbursement; however, in odd partial contradiction, the IDEA limits the equitable step to "a judicial finding of unreasonableness." 20 U.S.C. §§1412(a)(10)(C)(ii) and 1412(a)(10)(C)(iii)(III) (emphasis added); see also 34 C.F.R. § 300.148(d)(3) (implementing the reimbursement limitation). In its recent ruling regarding tuition reimbursement, the Supreme Court incidentally rejected the defendant-district's argument that asserted that the broad remedial authority expressly granted to courts (supra note 10 and accompanying text) contradicted this specific remedial authority granted to hearing officers. Forest Grove Sch. Dist. v. T.A., 129 S. Ct. 2484, 2494 n.11 (2009). Finally, in limiting the hearing officer's authority to find a denial of FAPE on circumscribed, basically prejudicial procedural violations, the 2004 IDEA reauthorization expressly recognized a hearing officer's authority to order a district to comply with the Act's pertinent procedural requirements. 20 U.S.C. § 1415(f)(e)(E); see also 34 C.F.R. §§300.148(c) and 300.148(d)(3) (mirroring this provision).

Commonwealth of Puerto Rico*, 451 F.3d 13 (1st Cir. 2006) (interpreting the IDEA as not providing money damages), Ortega v. Bibb County Sch. Sch. Dist. No. 1, 233 F.3d 1268 (10th Cir. 2000) (opining that, even if damages are available under the IDEA, they should be awarded in a judicial forum and not in an administrative hearing), Thompson v. Bd. of Educ., 98 F.3d 989 (7th Cir. 1996) (rejecting money damages as inconsistent with the IDEA's structure of elaborate provision for educational services), with Goleta Union Elementary Sch. Dist. v. Ordway, 248 F. Supp. 2d 936, 939 (C.D. Cal. 2002) (deducing congressional intent to provide a plaintiff with recovery under § 1983 for violations of the IDEA), Zearley v. Ackerman, 116 F. Supp. 2d 109, 114 (D.D.C. 2000) (joining the Third Circuit's previous position that there is an implied right of action for monetary damages for § 1983 claims premised on IDEA violations), and L.C. v. Utah State Bd. of Educ., 57 F. Supp. 2d 1214 (D. Utah 1999) (granting money damages under the IDEA, as well as under § 1983, for violation of due process rights provided under the IDEA). The case law is limited and similarly split with regard to punitive damages. Compare T.B. v. Upper Dublin Sch. Dist., 40 IDELR P 67, at 265 (E.D. Pa. 2003) (analogizing the funding conditions of the IDEA to a contract and noting that punitive damages are not available in breach of contract cases), and Appleton Area Sch. Dist. v. Benson, 32 IDELR P 91, at 284 (E.D. Wis. 2000) (finding that punitive damages are not available under IDEA), with Irene B. v. Phila. Acad. Charter Sch., 38 IDELR P 183, at 738 (E.D. Pa. 2003) (allowing a claim for punitive damages against an individual), and Woods v. N.J. Dep't of Educ., 796 F. Supp. 767, 776 (D.N.J. 1992) (quoting 20 U.S.C. § 1415(e)(2) and citing Burlington Sch. Comm. v. Mass. Dep't of Educ., 471 U.S. 359 (1985)) (holding that the IDEA authorized punitive damages, based on the language that the court may "grant such relief as [it] determines is appropriate").

n18. The scope of this Article does not extend to the remedial authority of H/ROs under § 504 of the Rehabilitation Act. For one of the rare examples of applicable authority, see Albuquerque Pub. Sch., 38 IDELR P 235, at 941 (N.M. SEA 2002).

n19. The primary publication for H/RO decisions (designated in the citations as "SEA" inasmuch as the state education agency is responsible for the H/RO system) and Department of Education's Office of Special Education Programs (OSEP) interpretations is the Individuals with Disabilities Education Law Report (IDELR) and its predecessor, the Education of the Handicapped Law Report (EHLR). The representativeness of the IDELR's sampling of H/RO decisions is subject to question. See Anastasia D'Angelo, Gary Lutz & Perry A. Zirkel, Are Published IDEA Hearing Officer Decisions Representative?, 14 J. Disability Pol'y Stud. 241 (2004) (examining previous hearing officer decisions under IDEA to determine whether they were representative of the outcomes and frequency of published and unpublished opinions). For the extent of authority of OSEP letters, see Perry Zirkel, Do OSEP Policy Letters Have Legal Weight? 171 Educ. L. Rep. 391 (2002).

n20. See James Newcomer & Perry A. Zirkel, An Analysis of the Judicial Outcomes of Special Education Cases, 65 Exceptional Child 469 (1999) (tracking court cases concerning special education disputes under the administrative and judicial venues).

n21. In general, H/ROs and courts defer to school districts in staff and methodology selection cases. See, e.g., Perry Zirkel, Know Legal Boundaries with Student Evaluation Provisions, 17 The Special Educator 3 (2002); Perry Zirkel, Do School Districts Typically Win Methodology Cases, 13 Special Educator 11 (1997); Tara Skibitsky Levinson & Perry Zirkel, Parents vs. Districts in Selecting the Psychologist: Who Wins?, 30 Communique 10 (2001) (available from the Nat'l Ass'n of Sch. Rep.* 11 (1993) (synthesizing legal boundaries of impartiality under the IDEA).

n23. See, e.g., Indep. Sch. Dist. No. 432 v. J.H., 8 F. Supp. 2d 1166 (D. Minn. 1998) (invalidating a hearing officer order for lack of jurisdiction); Bd. of Educ. of Ellenville Cent. Sch. Dist., 28 IDELR 337, 340 (N.Y. SEA 1998) (upholding by review officer of a hearing officer's determination of retained jurisdiction to implement his own injunction). Jurisdiction and remedial authority are overlapping rather than mutually exclusive topics. Thus, the boundary for is inevitably blurry as to which legal authority to include herein.

n24. For cases dealing with jurisdiction of H/ROs, see for example Va. Office of Prot. & Advocacy v. Virginia, 262 F. Supp. 2d 648 (E.D. Va. 2003); P.N. v. Greco, 282 *F. SEA 1998); cf. Bd. of Educ. v. Johnson, 534 F. Supp. 2d 231 (D. Del. 2008) (ruling that H/ROs lack remedial authority to order services to parentally placed private school students beyond district's limited IDEA's obligations to such students).

n25. For application of the statute of limitations that the 2004 amendments expressly included in the IDEA for the first time, see, e.g., Steven I. v. Cent. Bucks Sch. Dist., 618 F.3d 411 (3d Cir. 2010) (holding that the IDEA's two-year statute of limitations applies to claims pre-dating passage of the IDEA); D.C. v. Klein Indep. Sch. Dist., 711 F. Supp. 2d 793 (S.D. Tex. 2010) (applying the different statute of limitations that the IDEA allows under state law). For a synthesis of this topic prior to the 2004 amendments, see Perry A. Zirkel & Peter J. Maher, The Statute of Limitations Under the Individuals with Disabilities Act, 175 Educ. L. Rep. 1 (2003) (surveying cases in which courts or H/ROs have established statutes of limitations under the IDEA via the borrowing analogy).

n26. To date, there is negligible authority specific to this subject. For a comprehensive source that includes hearing officer decisions under § 504, see Perry A. Zirkel, § 504, the ADA, and the Schools (2d ed. 2000).

n29. See, e.g., Cocores v. Portsmouth, 779 F. Supp. 203, 205 (D.N.H. 1991) (quoting S-1 v. Spangler, 650 F. Supp. 1427, 1431 (M.D.N.C. 1986), vacated as moot, 832 F.2d 294 (4th Cir. 1987)) ("It seems incongruous that Congress intended the reviewing court to maintain greater authority to order relief than the hearing officer ..."); Ivan P. v. Westport Bd. of Educ., 865 F. Supp. 74, 80 (D. Conn. 1994); cf. Hesling v. Avon Grove Sch. Dist., 428 F. Supp. 2d 262, 273 (E.D. Pa. 2006) (commenting that "the case law is clear that various forms of equitable relief, including the issuance of a declaratory judgment, can be obtained through the IDEA's administrative proceedings"). Among IDEA H/ROs, the leading, perhaps only, exception to this broad derivative view is the state of Florida, where some of the hearing officers have interpreted Florida law, including its constitution and case law, as precluding their remedial authority with regard to tuition reimbursement and compensatory education. E-mail from John VanLaningham, Administrative Law Judge, Florida Office of Administrative Hearings, to Perry A. Zirkel, Professor, Lehigh University, Oct. 2, 2010 11:47:30 (on file with the author). The Eleventh Circuit avoided determining whether hearing officers may have less remedial authority than courts with regard to tuition reimbursement, concluding that the issue was not justiciable in the absence of a hearing officer's finding that the parent met the criteria for this remedy. L.M.P. v. Florida Dep't of Educ., 345 F. App'x 248 (11th Cir. 2009). The Supreme Court's recent clarification, in Forest Grove, that reinforces the remedial authority of H/ROs (supra note 12) and Florida's recent legislation that seems to provide a reminder of federal preemption (Fla. Stat. § 1003.571(1) (2009) (requiring the state board of education to comply with the IDEA) may mitigate or eliminate this state-specific restrictive remedial interpretation.

n32. 34 C.F.R. § 300.507(a)(1). For the FAPE and placement regulations, see §§300.17, .104, .115-.116. On occasion, the H/RO waffles on the yes-no issue of appropriateness. See Lampeter Strasburg Sch. Dist., 43 IDELR P 17, at 58 (Pa. SEA 2005) ("The IEP is appropriate for what it is But it is wholly lacking It is not necessarily inappropriate, but it is only marginally appropriate.").

n33. S.G. v. Dist. of Columbia, 498 F. Supp. 2d 304, 313 (D.D.C. 2007) (ruling that the IDEA does not provide for declaratory relief). The court cited its earlier decision in Kaseman v. District of Columbia, 329 F. Supp. 2d 20, 32 (D.D.C. 2004), which indeed included this pronouncement but only in cryptic application to a requested injunction for an unripe controversy, thus inferably referring to the general unavailability of advisory opinions).

n37. Letter to Eig, EHLR 211:174 (OSEP 1980) ("Where 'appropriate' placement is at issue, the hearing officer's scope of authority includes deciding what placement would be appropriate for that child."). In contrast, the Department of Education's Office for Civil Rights (OCR) recognized the local limitation of the Mills consent decree in reaching a less broad, but perhaps intermediate, interpretation. Dist. of Columbia Pub. Sch., EHLR 257:208 (OCR 1981).

n38. Davis, 530 F. Supp. at 1212-13.

n39. For example, this decision pre-dated the Supreme Court's landmark FAPE decision in Bd. of Educ. v. Rowley, 458 U.S. 176 (1982).

n41. Indeed, in a recent case the same court not only declared, but also ordered the parents' proposed placement, albeit under the rubric of compensatory education. Diatta v. Dist. of Columbia, 319 F. Supp. 2d 57 (D.D.C. 2004). In doing so, the court ruled that the hearing officer's denial of the education program requested by the parent constituted an abdication of his authority. Id. at 65; see also Manchester Sch. Dist. v. Christopher B., 807 F. Supp. 860 (D.N.H. 1992) (ordering the district to implement the parents' proposed placement). For an early exception to the modern trend, see Hendry County Sch. Bd. v. Kujawski, 408 So. 2d 566 (Fla. Dist. Ct. App. 1986), which overruled the hearing officer's sua sponte order of parents' proposed placement and limited the hearing officer's authority to merely recommend a different placement if he finds the district's proposal inappropriate. Citing another D.C. decision after Davis that presumably sanctions injunctive authority, a pair of respected commentators concluded the following: "The better view appears to be that the hearing officer is not limited to accepting or rejecting the placement proposed by the [district] and may consider placements proposed by the parents." Thomas Guernsey & Kathe Klare, Special Education Law 160 (2001) (citing Diamond v. McKenzie, 602 F. Supp. 632 (D.D.C. 1985)).

SEA 1995) (ordering interagency arrangement for residential placement per parents' position).

n43. See Rockport Pub. Sch., 36 IDELR P 27, at 100 (Mass. SEA 2002) (finding it "inappropriate ... to issue an order with respect to ... prevailing party status"). But see *Seattle Sch. SEA 2001) (holding that the District denied the student a FAPE and requiring the District to reimburse the parents for any costs incurred for the student's tuition at a private school).

n44. Another less frequent exception is where a court expressly delegates this determination to the H/RO. See Burlington Sch. Comm., 20 IDELR 1103, 1106 (Vt. SEA 1994) (holding that prevailing parents are entitled to attorneys' fees). For the related but separate issue of attorneys' sanctions, which are a form of injunctive relief, see infra notes 175-80 and accompanying text.

In distinguishing previous Pennsylvania cases, the Mifflin court provided a rather relaxed boundary to sua sponte considerations. Id. at 1014 (distinguishing Stroudsburg Area Sch. Dist. v. Jared M., 712 A.2d 807 (Pa. Commw. Ct. 1998) and Millersburg Area Sch. Dist. v. Lynda T., 707 A.2d 572 (Pa. Commw. Ct. 1998)). The same court applied this reasoning to injunctive relief. n51. H/ROs in some jurisdictions - for example, Pennsylvania - use the term "order" generically as the caption for the remedies section of their written opinions. As another example of the blurred boundary, an H/RO's declaratory determination that the district's or the parent's proposed program or placement is appropriate in effect amounts to an order to effectuate said program or placement. For more of these forms of relief, see supra note 12.

n52. See, e.g., Mars Area Sch. Dist. v. Laurie L., 827 A.2d 1249, 1257-58 (Pa. Commw. Ct. 2003) (disallowing a reviewing officer's evaluation of issues that a hearing officer did not address); Susquehanna Twp. Sch. Dist. v. Frances J., 823 A.2d 249, 252 (Pa. Commw. Ct. 2003) (concluding that a hearing officer's failure to identify a particular issue did not preclude a review officer from addressing, where the parent had raised, it). The federal courts in the same jurisdiction have done likewise. See, e.g., Neshaminy Sch. Dist. v. Karla B., 26 IDELR 827, 830 (E.D. Pa. 1997) (concluding that a review panel lacked authority to consider an issue not before the hearing officer).

App. 1999) (invalidating an H/RO's sua sponte order for additional speech therapy, citing Hendry County Sch. Bd. v. Kujawski, 498 So. 2d 566 (Fla. Ct. App. 1986)); Bd. of Educ. of City Sch. Dist. of New York, 31 IDELR P 18, at 55 (N.Y. SEA 1998) (vacating a hearing officer decision to the extent it addressed an issue not raised by the parties); Hyde Park Cent. Sch. Dist., 29 IDELR 658, 662 (N.Y. SEA 1998); Bd. of Educ. of City Sch. Dist. of New York, 23 IDELR 744, 747 (N.Y. SEA 1995); Fairfax County Pub. Sch., 21 IDELR 1214, 1218 (Va. SEA 1995); Crandon Sch. Dist., 17 EHRLR 718 (Wis. SEA 1991) (finding that a hearing officer lacked authority to consider issues not pertaining to the hearing).

n54. See, e.g., Dist. of Columbia v. Doe, 611 F.3d 888, 898 (D.D. Cir. 2010) (holding that hearing officer's order to reduce student's suspension was within his authority based on FAPE even after determining the student's misconduct was not a manifestation of his disability); J.S. v. N. Colonie Cent. Sch. Dist., 586 F. Supp. 2d 74 (N.D.N.Y. 2008) (regarding transition services as implicit within FAPE issue); Lago Vista Unified Sch. Dist., 50 IDELR P 104 (W.D. Tex. 2008) (reversing tuition reimbursement, although also citing alternative grounds); Dep't of Educ. v. E.B., 45 IDELR P 249 (D. Hawaii 2006) (ducking sua sponte issue); Hyde Park Cent. Sch. Dist. v. Peter C., 21 IDELR 354, 354-55 (S.D.N.Y. 1994) (holding that the state review officer did not act beyond his authority by ordering independent evaluations paid for by the school district). As in various other areas of remedial boundaries, the treatment overlaps with subject matter jurisdiction.

n55. For the obverse, see In re Student with a Disability, 44 IDELR P 115 (N.M. SEA 2005) (reversing hearing officer's denial of summary judgment to district that, in the motion, offered all of the relief that the parents requested).

n56. Crown Point Cent. Sch. Dist., 46 IDELR P 269 (N.Y. SEA 2007). At the time of the hearing, the parties were awaiting the results, but there was no evidence of undue delay. The review officer's mootness reasoning for the related issue of the effect of the lack of the evaluation on the previous pertinent period, however, was not cogent as a general matter. A remedy is not necessarily futile and, thus, moot just because the annual IEP has expired.

n66. 20 U.S.C. § 1414(a)(1)(D)). This limitation appears in the form of a prohibition against the school district providing services "by utilizing the procedures described in" the adjudicative dispute resolution provisions of the IDEA. Id. Conversely, this amendment to the IDEA further indirectly limits the remedial authority of H/ROs and courts by immunizing the school district against a resulting claim for denial of FAPE and by excusing the district from its obligation to convene an IEP meeting and develop an IEP. Id.

Although not foreclosing the possibility of tuition reimbursement without a denial of FAPE, the Third Circuit recently rejected such a residuum for an extended delay in the adjudicatory approval of the appropriateness of an IEP. C.W. v. Rose Tree Media Sch. Dist., 395 F. App'x 824 (3d Cir 2010).

n78. Burlington Sch. Comm., 471 U.S. at 369. Although the Court focused on judicial remedial authority, other sources interpreted the authority as extending to H/ROs. See, e.g., Letter to Van Buiten, EHLR 211:429A (OSEP 1987) (citing S-1 v. Spangler, 650 F. Supp. 1427 (M.D.N.C. 1986)).

n79. Burlington Sch. Comm., 471 U.S. at 370-71 ("Reimbursement merely requires the Town to belatedly pay expenses that it should have paid all along and would have borne in the first instance ...").

n80. This codification arguably preserves the uncoded residuum of Burlington-Carter. See, e.g., 64 Fed. Reg. 12,603 (Mar. 12, 1999). The Supreme Court provided support for this view in Forest Grove Sch. Dist. v. T.A., 129 S. Ct. 2484, 2494 n.11 (2009) (relying on Burlington-Carter to reject defendant district's argument regarding purported conflict between remedial authority provisions of IDEA). In any event, this decision filled a gap not clearly addressed by either the legislation nor Burlington and Carter, ruling that lack of previous enrollment in the district's special education program is one of several equitable factors for, rather than automatic preclusion of, tuition reimbursement.

n81. 20 U.S.C. § 1412 (a)(10)(C)(ii) (2009); 34 C.F.R. § 300.148(c) (2009). However, in an apparent glitch, Congress limited one of its equitable considerations to a "judicial" finding of parental unreasonableness. 20 U.S.C. § 1412(a)(10)(C)(iii); 34 C.F.R. § 148(c). A recent decision interpreted this language as nonrestrictive in light of the overall Congressional delegation of tuition reimbursement determinations to IH/ROs and courts. Hogan v. Fairfax County Sch. Bd., 645 F. Supp. 2d 554 (E.D. Va. 2009).

n87. In contrast to this first part of this review officer's decision, the Ninth Circuit recently ruled that the standard of judicial review of an IHO's tuition reimbursement decision is de novo. Ashland Sch. Dist. v. Parents of Student E.H., 587 F.3d 1175 (9th Cir. 2009). For a recent decision where the court upheld the IHO's tuition reimbursement rulings under what appeared to be de novo review, see Ka.D. v. Solana Beach School District, 254 IDELR P 310 (E.D. Cal. 2010).

n88. In re Student with a Disability, 30 IDELR 408, 416-18 (DDESS 1998). The review officer also reversed the hearing officer's decision with regard to other injunctive relief, which is separately addressed infra notes 142-43 and accompanying text. In contrast, a state appellate court's limitation on the reimbursement remedy in the IDEA's complaint resolution process would not appear to apply to the multi-step standards for H/ROs. Specially, a Minnesota appeals court reversed the state's corrective action of partial tuition (here tutoring) reimbursement because it had only an equivocal, not direct, nexus to the IDEA deficiency, or FAPE violation. Indep. Sch. Dist. No. 192 v. Minnesota Dep't of Educ., 742 N.W.2d 713 (Minn. Ct. App. 2007)

n91. For example, the hearing officer refers to various forms of hostility, but a failure to provide FAPE, whether as a matter of formulation or implementation, certainly suffices for the primary step of the Burlington-Carter analysis. Similarly, the hearing officer makes the analogy to punitive damages, but the cited authority, which are IDEA cases, merely distinguish tuition reimbursement from money damages.

n92. See, e.g., Perry A. Zirkel, State Laws for Gifted Education: An Overview of the Legislation and Regulations, 27 Roeper Rev. 228, 229 (2005) ("Kansas ... has laws [for gifted students] that approach the strength and specificity of the primary federal legislation for students with disabilities.").

n94. The court's ruling and reasoning for the parent's alternative claim for compensatory education was the same. Id.

n95. One distinction is that tuition reimbursement requires the parents to prove the appropriateness of their chosen program. Another is that tuition reimbursement, except for the equitable limitations, is essentially an all-or-nothing choice, whereas compensatory education is amenable to careful tailoring. Thus far, neither the courts nor H/ROs have recognized these distinctions in their analyses. To the contrary, the Third Circuit's differential treatment, to whatever extent that it remains differential, lacks an explicit rationale. See supra notes 83-84 and accompanying text. M.C. v. Cent. Reg'l Sch. Dist., 81 F.3d 389, 397 (3d Cir. 1996). For a suggested approach that is defensibly consistent, see Zirkel 2006, supra note 15. Quere whether Winkelman v. Parma City Sch. Dist., 550 U.S. 516 (2007), in which the Supreme Court concluded that parents have independent enforceable rights under the IDEA, supports or counters the purported distinction between tuition reimbursement as the parent's right and compensatory education as the student's right?

n103. Zirkel 2010, supra note 15, at 503-04 nn.23-26 and accompanying text. The minority view is that the denial must be gross. Id. at 504 n.25.

n104. Each of these issues is subject to split and relatively limited authority.

n106. Zirkel, supra note 27, at 748 n.17. In contrast, the availability of compensatory education after age 21 for violations before age 21 is relatively settled. Id. at 748 n.16; Zirkel 2010, supra note 15, at 502 n.15. For a recent example, see Ferren C. v. Sch. Dist. of Philadelphia, 612 F.3d 712 (3d Cir. 2010) (upholding compensatory education, in the unusual form of an IEP, after age 21 for denial of FAPE before age 21).

n108. Zirkel 2010, supra note 15, at 508 nn.53-54; Zirkel, supra note 27, at 755 nn.67-68. A variation of this issue is when the two forms of relief are not awarded for the same period, instead being successive or alternative. For example, the Third Circuit recently ruled that compensatory education is not available for a unilaterally placed child, i.e., as an alternative to tuition reimbursement where the parent proves a denial of FAPE but loses at one of the subsequent steps. P.P. v. W. Chester Area Sch. Dist., 585 F.3d 727 (3d Cir. 2009). In a case earlier in the year, the same court had rejected compensatory education where the district had made good faith efforts to provide FAPE, leaving ambiguous whether such alternative relief would be available. Mary T. v. Sch. Dist. of Philadelphia, 575 F.3d 235 (2009). In a more recent and unpublished decision, the same court rejected compensatory education, as an alternative to tuition reimbursement, where the district flagrantly delayed in processing the request for an impartial hearing but the ultimate determination was that the district's IEP was appropriate. C.W. v. Rose Tree Media Sch. Dist., 395 F. App'x 824 (3d Cir. 2010). On the other hand, contributing to the confusion, the Eleventh Circuit affirmed a decision that include the H/RO's unchallenged choice of remedy, which was prospective tuition reimbursement as a form of compensatory education. Draper v. Atlanta Sch. Sys., 518 F.3d 1275 (11th Cir. 2008).

n110. Susquehanna Twp. Sch. Dist. v. Frances J., 823 A.2d 249, 257 (Pa. Commw. Ct. 2003).

n111. See, e.g., Neshaminy Sch. Dist. v. Karla B., 26 IDELR 827 (E.D. Pa. 1997) (granting a motion for summary judgment because the issue of compensatory education was withdrawn from the hearing officer's consideration). Yet, H/ROs continue to transgress this limit, even on occasion in Pennsylvania. See Lampeter Strasburg School District, 43 IDELR P 17, at 51 (Pa. SEA 2005); In re Student with a Disability, 42 IDELR P 224, at 1195 (Pa. SEA 2005) (providing the most recent examples).

n112. See Zirkel, supra note 27, at 756 n.78 (noting that vague awards cause implementation problems); cf. Streck v. Bd. of Educ., 280 F. App'x 66 (2d Cir. 2008) (finding lack of evidentiary basis).

n114. Zirkel 2010, supra note 15, at 508 n.60; Zirkel, supra note 27, at 755 nn.73-75. A recent federal appeals court decision ruled that an H/RO may not delegate remedial authority for formulating the amount of compensatory education to the IEP team, which includes at least one district employee, in light of the IDEA prohibition that the H/RO may not be a district employee. Reid v. District of Columbia, 401 F.3d 516, 526 (D.C. Cir. 2005); see also Bd. of Educ. of Fayette County v. L.M., 478 F.3d 307 (6th Cir. 2007), cert. denied, 532 U.S. 1042 (2007). The prevailing judicial view, however, even in the D.C. Circuit, is that the IEP team is the appropriate forum for resolving the implementation issues of the compensatory education award. See, e.g., Simms v. District of Columbia, 404 F. Supp. 2d 45 (D.D.C. 2005); Blackman v. District of Columbia, 374 F. Supp. 2d 168 (D.D.C. 2005); Melvin v. Town of Bolton Sch. Dist., 20 IDELR 1189 (D. Vt. 1993), aff'd mem., 100 F.3d 944 (2d Cir. 1996); State of Conn. Unified Dist. No. 1 v. State Dep't of Educ., 699 A.2d 1077 (Conn. Super. Ct. 1997); cf. Struble v. Fallbrook Union High Sch., 56 IDELR P 4 (S.D. Cal. 2011) (upholding remand to IEP team to devise, not reduce or discontinue, the award). A related question is whether the H/RO must or may order such implementation via an escrow fund. Zirkel 2010, supra note 15, at 509 n.62; Zirkel, supra note 27, at 756 n.77. For recent examples, see Streck v. Bd. of Educ., 642 F. Supp. 2d 105 (N.D.N.Y. 2009), modified, 408 F. App'x 411 (2d Cir. 2010) (ordering escrow account for $ 37,778 for prescribed compensatory reading services for student now at postsecondary institution); Matanuska-Susitna Borough Sch. Dist. v. D.Y., 54 IDELR P 52 (D. Alaska 2010) (upholding, after supplemental briefing under qualitative approach, $ 50k compensatory education fund equivalent to approximately 300 hours of speech therapist services plus roughly 208 hours of aide services, at the respective rates of $ 125 and $ 60 per hour, or 2.7 hours of speech services and 1.9 hours of aide services per week for 3 school years); cf. Millay v. Surry Sch. Dep't, 56 IDELR P 162 (D. Me. 2011) (rejecting trust fund under the circumstances).

n115. See, e.g., Parents of Student W. v. Puyallup Sch. Dist., 31 F.3d 1489 (9th Cir. 1994) (holding that compensatory education is an equitable remedy and only to be awarded when appropriate). However, there is some authority that the basis for calculation must be the student's changed needs rather than the student's needs at the time of the denial. See, e.g., Conn. Unified Sch. Dist. v. State Dep't of Educ., 699 A.2d 1077, 1090 (Conn. Super. Ct. 1997) (deciding that the compensatory education program, while unorthodox, is appropriate). Moreover, a federal appeals court recently overturned an H/RO's "cookie cutter" approach, requiring instead a customized calculation qualitatively based on "specific educational deficits resulting from [the child's] loss of FAPE." Reid, 401 F.3d at 523, 526; see also Branham v. District of Columbia, 427 F.3d 7, 9 (D.C. Cir. 2005) (emphasizing the need for an inquiry that is "qualitative, fact-intensive, and above all, tailored to the unique needs of the disabled student"); cf. D.H. v. Manheim Twp. Sch. Dist., 45 IDELR P 38 (E.D. Pa. 2005) (based on "only those needs of the student[] that directly flow from his diagnosed SLD"). In a recent district court decision in the wake of Reid and Branham, the judge expressed a general preference for H/ROs to make this needs-based determination, subject to judicial review. Thomas v. District of Columbia, 407 F. Supp. 2d 102 (D.D.C. 2005). For a more complete canvassing of the case law concerning the qualitative approach, which present procedural and evidentiary complications for H/ROs, see Zirkel, Competing Approaches, supra note 15. For the possible need under the qualitative approach for a bifurcated approach at the IHO level based on the analogy to additional evidence upon judicial review, see Gill v. Dist. of Columbia, 751 F. Supp. 2d 104 (D.D.C. 2010); Banks v. Dist. of Columbia, 720 F. Supp. 2d 83 (D.D.C. 2010).

n116. See, e.g., Bourne Pub. Sch., 37 IDELR P 261, at 1144 (Mass. SEA 2002) (denying jurisdiction with the only explanation being, without any cited support, that "this is not a claim for which there is available relief under the IDEA").

n119. The express provisions in the IDEA for student records and the broad-based scope of the IDEA's adjudicative dispute resolution mechanism arguably suggest overlapping, rather than mutually exclusive, jurisdiction between the IDEA and the Family Education Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA), at least when the records issue relates to the identification, evaluation, or placement of the child. See, e.g., 34 C.F.R. §§300.613-621 (2009) (providing an SEA with broad authority to ensure the requirements of the IDEA are met); § 507(a) (allowing for parental due process rights). When the H/RO has jurisdiction, remedial authority within the otherwise prescribed boundaries should follow.

n120. Nw. R-1 Sch. Dist., 40 IDELR P 221, at 923 (Mo. SEA 2004). The panel contributed to the questionableness of its conclusion by responding to the parents' request for tuition reimbursement merely as follows: "[We] may not place the student in a parochial school or award money damages" Id. at 923.

n123. Id. In addition to the arguable concurrent jurisdiction of the FERPA office and H/ROs (see supra note 119), it is not at all clear how FERPA covers a student's medical record where the parents have not released it to the school.

n125. Letter to Davis-Wellington, 40 IDELR P 182, at 748 (OSEP 2003). For the related question concerning the failure to provide IEP-specified accommodations for graduation and other district- or state-wide testing, OSEP suggested that the controlling criterion is whether the failure has resulted in a denial of FAPE and that the proper remedy (although not ascribed specifically to an H/RO) is to provide the student with the opportunity to retake the assessment with appropriate accommodations. Id.

n126. In contrast, some H/RO decisions have prudentially avoided such determinations, thus avoiding the necessity and opportunity for judicial guidance. See, e.g., Arlington Cent. Sch. Dist., 28 IDELR 1130 (N.Y. SEA 1998) (finding that the transition assistance afforded a disabled student was sufficient and graduating the student was proper); cf. Conejo Valley Unified Sch. Dist., 29 IDELR 779 (Cal. SEA 1998) (postponing a determination by treating the issue as remedial rather than jurisdictional and, thus, warranting factual development).

n127. Boston Pub. Sch., 24 IDELR 985, 988 (Mass. SEA 1996). The hearing officer thus found it unnecessary to determine whether she had "the authority to order credits which would in effect promote" the student. Id. at 989 n.4.

n129. For example, the court observed that the student needed acceleration, while reasoning that it was "counter-intuitive to consider that [the student's] progress was accelerated by completing fewer credits, albeit faster, than his matriculation peers." Id. at 1079.

n130. Specifically, the court relied on its IDEA-related Woodland Hills decision; see infra note 131 for its preemption rationale. Id. at 1078. Nevertheless, the court limited the scope of its ruling by expressly not considering the question of whether the state's review officer panel has "authority to grant credit for pre-high school courses, which could then satisfy the requirements of graduation." Id. at 1079 n.20.

For example, after pointing out that the violation was the district's ejection of the parents from the IEP team, the court reasoned: "Although the [H/RO] may have the implicit authority to remedy non-compliance with the special education regulations, it does not have the authority to impose requirements in addition to those in the regulations." Id. at 1078. n156. For an analysis of the issue of IDEA settlements generally, see Mark C. Weber, Settling Individuals with Disabilities Education Act Cases: Making Up Is Hard to Do, 43 Loy. L.A. L. Rev. 641 (2010). For the specific related issue of whether H/ROs have the authority to determine whether parties' private settlement agreements are enforceable, which would fit here under declaratory relief, see Plymouth-Canton Cmty. Sch. v. K.C., 40 IDELR P 178, at 736-37 (E.D. Mich. 2003), in which the court upheld the validity of the agreement and expressed no difficulty with the hearing officer having reached this same conclusion. For the more remotely related matter of whether hearing officers have jurisdiction to resume the hearing process and issue resulting relief after the parties settled the matter during the hearing, see Indep. Sch. Dist. No. 432 v. J.H., 8 F. Supp. 2d 1166 (D. Minn. 1998). Finally, as a result of the Supreme Court's decision in Buckhannon Bd. and Care Home, Inc. v. West Virginia Dep't of Health and Human Res., 532 U.S. 598 (2001), hearing officers increasingly face the issue of whether they can and should affirm a private settlement agreement. See, e.g., Rockport Pub. Sch., 36 IDELR P 27, at 98-99 (Mass. SEA 2002) (recognizing that a hearing officer has no authority to award attorneys' fees).

n157. See, e.g., Ysleta Indep. Sch. Dist., 32 IDELR P 23, at 60-61 (Tex. SEA 1999) (holding that the petitioner's only remedy lies in enforcing the settlement agreement).

App. 1998) (ruling that H/RO had jurisdiction to decide whether settlement agreement existed and, if so, whether either party failed to comply with it); cf. T.G. v. Palm Springs Unified Sch. Dist., 304 F. App'x 548 (9th Cir. 2009) (requiring exhaustion); J.M.C. v. Louisiana Bd. of Elementary & Secondary Educ., 584 F. Supp. 2d 894 (M.D. Ala. 2008) (requiring exhaustion when settlement agreement not made during mediation or resolution session). In a decision that tangentially addressed H/RO authority in this area, a federal district court ruled that FAPE, rather than the contempt standard, applies to determine whether either party breached a settlement agreement. E.D. v. Enter. City Bd. of Educ., 273 F. Supp. 2d 1252, 1259 (M.D. Ala. 2003). The connection is that the issue arose, in the court's description, "where a hearing officer dismisses a request for a due process hearing and issues an order adopting a settlement agreement." Id.

Dist.*, 55 IDELR P 275 (E.D. Pa. 2011) (ruling that federal courts lack jurisdiction to enforce settlement agreements reached outside the IDEA's mediation and resolution-session process).

n166. Letter to Shaw, 50 IDELR P 207 (OSEP 2007). The agency added that such situations trigger each state's complaint resolution process the extent that the complaint alleges that the failure to provide the services or placement called for in a settlement agreement constitutes a denial of FAPE, Id.

n167. Compare A.R. v. New York City Dep't of Educ., 407 F.3d 65, 77 (2d Cir. 2005) (ordering attorneys' fees because the plaintiff-appellees received court-ordered consent decrees and there was a material alteration of the legal relationship such that they were "prevailing parties" under the IDEA), with Maria C. v. Sch. Dist. of Philadelphia, 43 IDELR P 243, at 1169-70 (3d Cir. 2005) (refusing to order attorneys' fees because there was no material alteration of the legal relationship of the parties).

n168. See, e.g., Wyner v. Manhattan Beach Unified Sch. Dist., 223 F.3d 1026, 1028-29 (9th Cir. 2000); Bd. of Educ. of Wappingers Cent. Sch. Dist., 47 IDELR P 115 (N.Y. SEA 2006); Crown Point Cent. Sch. Dist., 46 IDELR P 269 (N.Y. SEA 2006); Newtown Bd. of Educ., 41 IDELR P 201, at 827 (Conn. SEA 2004). But cf. Lake Travis Indep. Sch. Dist. v. M.L., 50 IDELR P 105 (W.D. Tex. 2007) (allowing H/RO enforcement based on state law). However, parents need not exhaust the state's complaint resolution process before seeking judicial enforcement of an H/RO order. Porter v. Bd. of Trustees, 307 F.3d 1064, 1074 (9th Cir. 2002).

n169. The prevailing view is that the appropriate, if not exclusive, avenue to enforce an H/RO decision is via a § 1983 action in court. See, e.g., Jeremy H. v. Mount Lebanon Sch. Dist., 95 F.3d 272, 279 (3d Cir. 1996); Dominique L. v. Bd. of Educ. of City of Chicago, 56 IDELR P 65 (N.D. Ill. 2011); L.J. v. Audubon Bd. of Educ., 47 IDELR P 100 (D.N.J. 2006); cf. Reid v. Sch. Dist. of Philadelphia, 41 IDELR P 268, at 1138 (E.D. Pa. 2004) (enforcing a compensatory education remedy under settlement agreement through § 1983 action). However, this avenue may be only open to parents, not districts. See, e.g., Metro. Sch. Dist. v. Buskirk, 950 F. Supp. 899, 903 (S.D. Ind. 1997).

n170. For the related issue of whether an H/RO has the jurisdiction to reopen the case upon the request of either party for enforcement purposes, see Bd. of Educ. of Ellenville Cent. Sch. Dist., 28 IDELR 337 (N.Y. SEA 1998).

Nevertheless, the hearing officer's ultimate conclusion was that the child was not eligible, thus making her ruling merely dicta. 44 IDELR P 293, at 1499.

n194. Tewksbury Pub. Sch., 43 IDELR P 148, at 656 (Mass. SEA 2005). This case is problematic because of the general complexity and confusion with regard to transfer of rights.
